

Bucket sort is a distribution sort. It works by arranging elements into 'buckets' which are then sorted using another sort. This typically utilizes insertion sort then merged into a sorted list.

Bucket sort is exceptionally fast because of the way elements are strategically assigned to buckets. This is normally through using an array where the index is the value. This means that there's a higher cost of memory for the sake of speed.

